

The amount of radio spectrum available is severely limited and therefore the distribution of this space should be heavily regulated. The amount of broadcast outlets any one company can own should be limited even more to ensure local and varied viewpoints. If as some argue the internet can provide diversity and variety then I say let those media companies invest in broadcast over IP if they really think it's in the same class as the broadcast bands.