Dear Ms. Dortch:

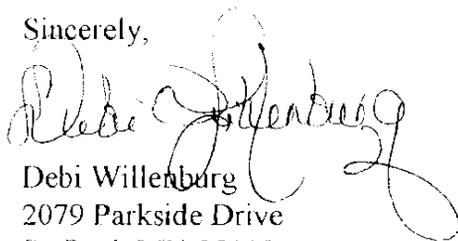

MC Docket No. 03-90

Efforts to bring real long-distance competition in Minnesota have been sluggish compared to attempts in other states. Several other states are all currently enjoying the benefits of increased long-distance competition. Yet here, we continue to wait. Why?

More competition in the market will encourage the current long-distance carriers to lower their rates and improve their customer service. I write in hope that you will agree and join me in helping phone customers in saving money.

Thank you for your time and attention to this letter.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Dortch:

WC Docket No. 03-90

I would like to express my support for competitive long-distance in Minnesota.

I feel it would be beneficial to all parties involved. I also feel that AT&T has had a monopoly on long-distance for too long. That is unfair.

I would thank for taking the time to read this letter.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Dortch:

As a Qwest employee, I support Qwest's application to provide long-distance service in Minnesota.

Allowing Qwest to provide long-distance in Minnesota will be good for consumers. Competition leads to lower prices, better services, and more technology. Consumers will also enjoy the convenience of single-billing. That will save them time and money.

Please support Qwest's efforts to join our state's long-distance market.

Sincerely,

Min. Docket No. 03-90

Dear Ms. Dortch:

Here at Qwest, we are interested in the issue of long-distance phone competition. As a manager at my company, I hope you'll join me in supporting the entry of our local phone company into the long-distance business in Minnesota.

The only way long-distance prices will come down if there is additional competition in the industry. Minnesota has fallen behind other states by not processing expeditiously with this process. For too long, we have heard too much talk and seen too little action. Current long-distance competitors want to keep the local phone company out of their market, and they are setting up roadblocks.

I hope that you agree that we need more competition for long-distance service in our state and will join me in seeking true choices for consumers.

Sincerely,

Kyle Stevens

Dear Ms. Dortch:

MC Docket No 03-90

Please support Qwest's application to provide long-distance in Minnesota.

Competition in long-distance will be good for consumers. They will see lower rates, better service, and more technology. Several other states have competition in their long-distance market. What makes the citizens of Minnesota any different from those of other states?

I urge you to allow Qwest to access our state's long-distance market.

Dear Ms. Dortch:

HC Docket No. 03-90

As a Qwest employee, I have seen competition in the phone market and what it does for consumers.

A Massachusetts Institute of Technology study showed real competition for consumers will save over $130 million in Minnesota alone. That is good news for consumers.

As Qwest employees in Minnesota, we need the revenue from long-distance to keep our jobs strong. Since the company contributes a large sum to the Minnesota economy, if we have long-distance we could contribute and employ even more.

I appreciate your time and attention.

Dear Ms. Dortch:

WC Docket No. 03-90

It is time for more choice and more competition in the long-distance business. More competition brings more and better services and lower prices. But for companies like mine, more competition also means more leverage to negotiate the best deals for our telecommunications services.

This is important to my company and other large business customers, because when Qwest enters our state's long-distance market, we will have telecommunications services tailored to our unique needs at lower prices than we can get from AT&T and MCI.

I think the best solution for this problem is to open up the long distance market as soon as possible. Everyone will benefit from lower rates and more choices.
