

No support here! There is already more than enough leakage of trash from power lines and cable TV, etc. I can only imagine the nightmares that another batch of stuff strung in front of my house will cause. Interference levels continue to rise, enforcement/compliance continues to decline. I also have not seen anything positive for the consumer come from any of this new stuff...if has served to further entrench the local utilities and reduce competition. One possible exception under certain limited situations of customer is DSL, where a consumer might combine data and voice on one line, thus eliminating one base #. Please-NO MORE!
