

I too believe it wise to allow all amateurs the use of HF frequencies, but I disagree they should be given the use of ANY Morse capabilities until they have earned that privilege by taking a Morse test. Any present ham can already upgrade to any higher class license, by passing further tests. The three new classes can remain under the present structure. There is no need to discontinue Morse testing, or separation of classes for those who do not want to ever work Morse.