

I hate to see the complete end to the morse code requirement. The current 5 wpm requirement is fairly minimal as is. Nonetheless, I do think that the current requirement might be maintained at least for the Extra Class, as one of the 'extras.' That would preserve the extra class area of the cw sections of the bands for people who can actually send and receive morse code. The General Class licensees can continue to use the majority of the cw portions of the bands to learn, without driving the rest of us crazy.
