

I agree with the consolidating of license classes but disagree with the point system and totaling score for the exams. In this senereo you could "pass" the written test, miss all the code questions, but still pass the exam. Proficiency is amuck here. Teach the code, Learn the code, pass the code is the best solution!

In another case a person could fail the written test, pass the code and still pass. This would be rewarding sloppy habbits as well.