

How in the hell with portability do I know whether I am making a local call or an intrastate long distance call that costs more than a long distance call?

I personally do not give a hoot whether my cell phone number or land phone is portable so why in the hell do I have to pay for something I neither want nor need? And pay twice, once for the cell phone and once for the landline.