History of the Cary Branch Library

The Cary Public Library first opened its doors for service on October 22, 1960 at 143 West Chatt founding impetus of the library was the Cary Junior Women's Club, which had secured a $3,000 North Carolina Library Commission. Mrs. Margaret L. Sherwood, who served as the first librarian 7,140 books were checked out that year In July of 1961, the Town of Cary began funding the lib

In 1964 the Library moved to upstairs quarters at 126 E Chatham Street. The Cary Jaycettes he renovation and move It was also in 1964 that the Cary Friends of the Library group was formed continuing support for the library program

Mrs Polly Williams succeeded as librarian in 1965, and as the library collection and use continue Library Board began to search for new facilities

In 1968 the Library moved again, this time to a location at 118 S Academy St , where it remained 1969 the Cary Library joined with the Wake County Public Library system in order to better provide local community The tremendous popularity of the Library was evident when in 1972-73 the Cary circulated over 63,000 items.

The Library moved to its fourth "temporary" quarters in 1973, this time to the location at 145 W. C Mrs Joyce Antrim was the librarian It was at this time that a movement began among the citizens were determined to build a "permanent" library Through their efforts, in 1974 a $750,000 library passed

Because of growth, the space for books, people and programs was limited The Cary Library was again, back to Academy Street, this time into the new Town Hall Mrs Carol Frushour served as this period

In the fall of 1976 construction began for a brand-new building located at 310 S. Academy Street. In 1977 the dedication ceremony officially opened the Library to the people of Cary, almost 27 years after its original beginnings.

More than 40 years later, the Library is still going strong. It has been at its present location for 23 years, and many Librarians have served at the Cary Library, including: Barbara Buescher, Dale Couser, Wasilick, Terri Luke, Janet Lockhart, and current Branch Manager, Liz Bartlett.

Now, in the year 2000, the collection tops 115,000 books, and more than 53,000 books are checked out each month. Whatever changes have occurred throughout the past 40 years, the Library and its public are loyal and committed to each other. In fact, this is affirmed each day, showing that the Cary Public Library is the "Heart of Cary".
