

What you are doing to free speech is completely shocking. Entertainers like Howard Stern are being crucified because of religious beliefs on the Hill, which should remain separate from the state, as the judiciary has held so many times. People are for the most part responsible enough to turn off whatever offends them, and the government does not need to decide what the public should and should not have, use, or enjoy. I am shocked at the lack of respect for the constitution, and the guarantee of freedom of speech. As a law student, it is a sad day for me to see the government, which I respected so much, sink so low. Leave speech alone, and focus on more pressing issues like the economy, children, health care, Iraq, terrorism, etc.
