

Your vague definitions of "indecent", strong-arm tactics and arbitrary fines are severely weakening your ability to be a viable, respected government agency. Your values do not reflect my values or the values of the majority of Americans and I resent your agency telling me what I can or cannot listen to. Radios and televisions come equipped with an on/off switch, which we all are free to use at will. The FCC's pandering to the fanatic religious right smells of desperation to justify your existence and it makes this American, frankly, sick.
