

Please do not punish the citizens by supporting the NAB's naked attempt to control a form of information provided to keep us safe during our daily lives. Since satellite radio is a pay-for-service medium, and separate from free government provided broadcast bands, denying us this important news service will subject us to inconvenience if not outright danger. Also, the way XM provides this information is more responsive to a commuter's needs. For one thing, it is continuously available. We don't have to wait for the broadcast stations to get around to it after feeding the public one commercial after another.
