

The Puerto Rico Amateur Radio League not representing all Amateur Radio in Puerto Rico. Its Totally False!!! In 80's Years ARRL/VEC Program is totally eliminated of Puerto Rico. All VE's Eliminated.

I no Understand returned to activate. Check This Letter Riley Hollingsworth Send to Victor Madera - KP4PQ for Advisign him to stop making allegations against other amateurs, concerning their licenses and/or upgrades. if you have some doubt Please contact Jim Williansom - NQ4T (W4VEC/VEC Manager E-mail: w4vec@northstate.net)

LETTER False Accusations:

Date: Tue, 11 Jun 2002 14:46:53 -0400

From: "Riley Hollingsworth"

To: <vmmdera@isla.net>

Cc: <w4vec@northstate.net>

Subject: Spanish language tests and W5YI VE's

Hi Victor. I'll leave the copyright issue to you, Bart and Bill Cross to resolve if there are any issues. However, I must object to your comments regarding former W5YI VE's being recertified by either W4VEC or W5YI. I have heard this allegation a number of times, and I have explained that there are at a maximum three former W5YI- VE's who have been put back in operation. The allegations against Ivan Valentin, with all due respect, should stop unless you have something credible other than rumor. In fact, the person claiming he paid $500 for an Amateur exam to a guy named Ivan was presented with a drivers license photo of Ivan Valentin and denied that it was him. The accusations made in the last paragraph of your letter are out of line unless you come up with something besides rumor. Nothing has been submitted to support your statement in your June 3 letter that "Please note that at the present time, ex-W5YI VE's (under the accreditation of other VECs) are re-examining candidates who do not show up for FCC retesting. An excellent way to bypass the FCC compliance program". I think that the allegations based on rumors should stop now, and this matter should be closed unless you have more reliable evidence. Furthermore, there is nothing wrong with their taking the tests--the whole idea is to make sure they get a valid test before getting an Amateur license. Anyone who does not show up for an exam is free to take it later if they want a license again, or if they want the license class they had.