

TV captioning is a wonderful educational tool for my two children with hearing loss. Not only does it allow them equal access to educational and entertaining shows, it promotes learning which is so important for their language development. My daughter reads several grades above her age, which is directly related to TV captioning.