

I am writing you to express my concern about cable programming and the lack of control I have over which cable networks come into my home. I urge you to make "a la carte" cable packaging available to customers. As a parent, I would love to be able to choose educational programming such as Discovery Channel, History Channel but feel it is unfair that I have to pay for and subsidize MTV, Nip/Tuck, and The Shield. I ask you to consider families like mine and please offer "a la carte" cable choice. By offering me the ability to choose the channels I want, and to pay only for those channels, you put power back into the hands of the consumer and force the producers of indecent or violent programming to fund their own raunch.

Regards,

Melanie Dino
