

Some TV stations, especially WPXI Pittsburgh PA, provide limited captions for pre-recorded segments but drop captioning for live segments and remote feeds of programming. This was especially apparent in coverage of recent weather emergency. Caption viewers were denied access to important information. FCC rules should require that programming should be completely captioned to be considered captioned programming.