

The question being asked here is apparently "why not?" The better question to ask is "why?" Why would arbitrarily invading the privacy of citizens of the United States be a good idea? The Bill of Rights guarantees a certain level of privacy of my affairs from the eyes of the government and it should stay that way.