

I'm in favor of the TV stations to publically report the amount of close captioning available to the viewer. I depend on the captioning most of the time. My hearing loss is severe, and I miss much of what is being said, even though I have a hearing aid. It is a great service for those of us who hear poorly. Recently I noticed the shows have speeded up the dialogue, i.e. Law and Order and The Apprentice. The captioning has helped me keep up with what is going on. It's also important for local news, especially this election year. Thanks for this wonderful service. Betty Yagi :-)
