I applaude your efforts thus far but as we all know, words on paper do nothing if not enforced. Great ideas, if not implemented are nothing. The road to hell is paved with good intentions. Action speaks much louder than words. Garbage in, garbage out.

Enough witty cliches. My eight year old son doesn't understand why it isn't OK to shoot people or take the law into his own hands. Lanugage picked up on TV has gotten him disciplined. My job as a parent is hard enough without the help of poor programing on TV. We all know that kids watch TV. Kids do what they see and say what they hear. TV plays a big part in that.

You are the watchdogs in a position to change things. It is possible to tell jokes without cursing. It is possible to catch bad guys without blowing their heads off. It is possible to watch the Super Bowl without seeing nudity. If things don't change, then the TV will continue to stay off. If we don't watch TV, then the commercials are wasted. I like TV as much as the next guy but I will not have my child exposed to material that is unsuitable for him.

Please do the right thing. The studies support that kids are affected by television. It doesn't take a rocket sceintist to figure that out. Do what you have to do to protect the children and to heck with what the people with money want.

Sincerely,

I just wanted to say that I am against excessive violence on TV and feel that it is harmful to the development of children in addition to the well-being of adults. I would love to see us return to the days of the 50's when violence was modestly portrayed to tell a story rather than glorified to grab ratings. You can display violence in a gory way and you will always be able to grab a certain voyeuristic element in America, but it's at the peril of decent-minded people and our children. Thank you.

As a parent and a grandparent, I am very concerned with the effect the violence that is allowed to be displayed on television is having on children. The things I see are unbelievable. I fear that we will only see in later years the full effect that this is having on our society. We are seeing some of it now, but probably just the tip of the iceberg. I would like to thank you for hearing the voices of the people on this matter. It is my opinion that television today glorifies sex and violence in its programming. This results in our youth developing beliefs that murder and violent acts are "cool" and somehow makes the youth feel important and excepted. They develop bonds with TV personalities and want to do the same type of violent acts. I believe this is a great opportunity to tone down the sex and violence that we see on TV today. I urge you to stop the sex and violence we find in to days TV programming. Thanks you.
