

I understand the FCC in considering expanding LPFM stations that could displace FM translators. I am very concerned about the potential impact on K-LOVE, a national radio service that transmits on translators. My family and I rely on K-LOVE for inspirational, uplifting messages. We also depend on K-LOVE for info regarding upcoming local events. We even search for K-LOVE stations when we travel out of range of our home station (96.9 in Dayton, OH). This station offers an incredible public service that has brought us back to public radio. Please don't take any steps that would jeopardize this service. Thanks for the opportunity to comment!
