

I am quite concerned about the upcoming broadcast of the anti-John Kerry documentary on Sinclair Broadcasting stations. The broadcast is wrong on several levels. Forcing stations owned by Sinclair Broadcasting to air political propaganda is not only a disappointing example of media consolidation, but also an attempt by corrupt big business to sway an emotionally and politically charged country with unethical and very un-democratic broadcasts.

Public airwaves are free of charge, and Sinclair is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Let's keep the United States a democracy and not fall victim, like so many other countries, to the way of dictatorships. We don't need to be told how to think or what to think. That's why we are a democratic society and that is what works to make this country great.

Thank you for considering this matter.
