

Dear FCC,

I am writing to inform you of my objection to LPFM stations being allowed to take over current FM stations. KLOVE, my station, currently serves my community and my congregation with uplifting, encouraging music and testimonials. In addition, the station (KLOVE) provides conservative views on the daily news. My family and church congregation would miss the programming of KLOVE very much if it went off the air for any reason. I have contributed monthly for more than 10 years to the station that serves us.

If the FCC decides to take FM stations off the air and replace them with LPFM stations a great disservice would be done to community for all cities. Individuals need to be able to have choices of music, news, talk, and other "local" mediums so that we can keep current with what is happening around us.

The greatest contribution that KLOVE makes to the community is a conservative Christian voice. Also, the music is so uplifting and encouraging. If the FCC wants to do something to improve the community and nation they should consider getting rid of talk radio that is so negative and not family sensitive.

I would appreciate further opportunity to communicate my convictions with the FCC on this matter if solicited.

Dr. David Miracle
