

I am opposed to cell phone use on airplanes. Put yourself in my place about a year ago, stranded on the runway for over an hour in a hot, stuffy airplane and this "conversation" by a cell phone user: "Hi _____, the plane hasn't taken off yet, it's boiling hot in here, I need a drink. I sure hope I can get one right away. Make sure you have plenty to drink when I get there. Lucky for me I'm hardly wearing anything on top, it's so hot in here...." Multiply this "conversation" by ten, twenty, thirty cell phone users talking simultaneously. No peace, no concentration, can't read or write or listen to music. Just a cacophony of other people's noise.

Please keep airplanes free of cell phone use. Thank you.
