

Do not weaken New Jersey's do not call list, and please make the federal law stronger. What gives here? I pay for my telephone service. This is not like its a commercial TV or radio issue.

Myself and my family want to be left alone. I do not want telemarketers calling my home at any time. Thys ahve no right invade my time and the sanctity of the privacy of my home.

It's my phone and it's my time. Unless the telemarketes are going to pay me the fee that I set for them to use my phone and time, then they can go pound sand. Or maybe the FCC wants to reimburse me.

My initial thoughts are, I may agree to let certain telemarketers call and have a certain period of time allotted to make there pitch, but I must first receive a chack in the amount of $50.00 per a pre-written agreement. But, no free invasions.

With New Jersey's law, myself and my family finally feel like we have our lives back. Billboards, magazines, TV, radio, buses, etc., these are advertizing and solicitation mediums. My private telephone line is not. Sincerely, Michael P. Chiacchio
