

The Commission's position has been to support the development of digital and enhanced technology. The courts are now mandating the enforcement of multiple station and cross-ownership caps. Here is a case where the FCC can not only support technological development by refusing a sale where HD service will be downgraded to support NTSC resolution, while simultaneously blocking the further concentration of satellite television ownership.

This ownership transfer should be rejected.