

I am a flight attendant for ATA, and an AFA member. I am highly opposed to cell phone use onboard airplanes, as I strongly feel that they could assist terrorists in communicating with one another. I also feel that the noise generated by multiple passengers talking on cell phones all at once will be a nuisance to everyone onboard, and will add to the tension people already feel being crammed into tight quarters. According to a recent survey, the majority of people in the US were opposed to cell phone use on planes-- since we are a democracy, why don't we let the majority rule here?
