

I like Voom very much and don't want to see its extinction. The programming is good and getting better. It has also forced Directv to start advertising more upcoming HD programming (local HD)so I believe the competition is healthy for the industry. I hope you will make the right decision by letting the market determine what we want and not reducing our number of choices in satellite TV providers.

Sincerely,

Richard H Speer