

Some time ago now, Commissioner Adelstein, was quoted in our paper as stating that he thought (in essence) that most people would use good practices with the use of cell phones aboard commercial flights. I almost had cardiac arrest at that statement. In fact, I wrote an e-mail to Commissioner Adelstein in which I questioned the wisdom of his statement.

So, as to be brief, I have "listened" "too" much of the gibberish that prevails when the plane is at the gate and the poor souls have to connect to the world that would still be there regardless. Sorry!

My congressman, the Honorable John J. Duncan, Jr. and I concur on this issue and hope that the FCC will see it in their wisdom to agree!
