

As a private citizen in Indiana I participate in the "do not call" list. I have appreciated the effectiveness of the list and I support its continuation. I am writing to oppose any effort by any organization to prohibit the regulation of telemarketing. The way I see it, it is my telephone service, which I pay for in my home, so I can use it as I wish. As a participant in the do not call list in Indiana. I am telling telemarketers that I do not want them to call. They should respect that wish. I understand that the do not call list may not work perfectly. But as long as it errors on the side of the consumer, that is makes it harder for telemarketers to call in error, if at all, then I think it is working just fine. Please do not do anything that will require the do not call list to be abandoned or weaken its effectiveness.

Brent Cummings
Winona Lake, Indiana