

I recently moved from bloomington, Indiana where I registered my telephone number with the State Attorney general's office. I went from no calls which was my desire to over 50 calls per week at all hours of the day. None of these phone calls we wished to receive. They are very annoying and call at all hours of the day and night. I am concerned that the proposals under consideration will weaken Indiana's law and the current law is perfectly balanced to preserve my rights from annoying slaes calls and some scams. Please keep the Indiana law in place so I can have an uninterrupted right to use my phone to talk to people I want to call.
