

July 14, 2005

Chairman Kevin Martin
Commissioner Kathleen Q. Abernathy
Commissioner Michael Copps
Commissioner Jonathan Adelstein
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th St., SW
Washington, DC 20554

Re: MB Docket Number 05-192

Dear Chairman Martin and Commissioners Abernathy, Copps, and Adelstein:

I write on behalf of the National Braille Press to express our support of the pending joint acquisition of Adelphia cable systems by Comcast Corporation and Time Warner Inc.

The National Braille Press (NBP) is a non-profit organization founded in 1927. The guiding purposes of the NBP are to promote the literacy of blind children through braille, and to provide access to information that empowers blind people to actively engage in work, family, and community affairs. Last year, NBP pressed nearly 15 million braille pages using special translation software and computer-driven equipment.

Our decision to support this transaction was an easy one. Most importantly, Adelphia – a company in bankruptcy – is being acquired by two strong and successful companies which have shown consistent and steadfast support for the visually impaired. Comcast for instance, has shown its commitment to us in more ways than one, including helping to produce children's books in Braille. Without Comcast's generosity, thousands of children would not have adequate reading material in braille. We encourage you to review our website at www.braille.com to see Comcast's logo displayed prominently as both a general financial supporter and also as a primary force behind our Hands On! Books for Blind Children campaign. Time Warner Inc. has also been a strong corporate partner of ours in donating children's storybooks so that we can create print/braille books for blind children. We look forward to having these commitments spread to the communities that Adelphia now serves.

Indeed, both companies have proven to be strong corporate partners with the communities they serve. We understand that Comcast's Cable in the Classroom initiative has provided free cable TV to almost 17,000 schools and free high speed internet to approximately 7,250 schools and 1,500 libraries. Comcast and Time Warner have partnered with organizations like the United Way, the National Urban League, and the Boys and Girls Clubs of America to extend services to a broader more diverse audience.

Federal Communications Commission
July 8, 2005
Page 2

Finally, the transaction would appear to serve the public interest by saving thousands of jobs in the areas now serviced by Adelphia. Time Warner and Comcast's stated commitment to invest hundreds of millions of dollars in new upgrades ($800 million alone in the case of Comcast) will also result in a higher and more efficient quality of service for consumers. Moreover, these companies are committed to franchise rules that require cable television providers to offer their services on a non-discriminatory basis as well as to offer channels for local public and educational programming.

We understand the vast implications of such an enormous acquisition and we do not take that lightly. Our support, I hope, conveys to you the solid faith we have in Comcast and Time Warner to continue their role as strong community partners and service providers. We urge you to support this transaction.

Sincerely,

William M. Raeder
President