

I oppose the petition by telemarketers and nonprofits asking the FCC to declare that states have no ability to regulate interstate telemarketing, only intrastate telemarketing. The Indiana state law has been successful in keeping telemarketing firms from bothersome calls that are not wanted and opening it up would only result in people dropping their phone service for cell phones instead. This is clearly not in the best interest of consumers.