

The current Indiana law has been very effective in preventing the number unsolicited calls we used to get. I think it is extremely inappropriate for outside businesses to claim a right to accessing a resource that I am paying for. If they were paying for my phone service that would be one thing, but they are not.

I have even started receiving telemarketing call on my cell phone.

When I ask how they got the number, they refuse to tell me. The only way they should be allowed to make those calls is if there were a means to bill them for bothering me. (By the way, regarding the cell phone, I never added it to a no call list because I never imagined I would get those types of calls on my cell.)

Please do not weaken the Indiana law. When legislators were working on it, the PEOPLE of Indiana were very excited. Please help look after OUR interest.

Sincerely,

Jerry Loza
