

To Whom it May Concern:

I like having the no-call list available to me. I enjoy the freedom of talking to persons whom I wish to talk to about services I wish to learn about. I don't enjoy salespersons calling me just because my number pops up. If I need to contact an individual about a service, then allow me that freedom. I don't like individuals calling me at inconvenient times to offer me a service I am not interested in obtaining. I am glad there is a no-call list and when I ask to be on it, guess what, I don't want calls from companies, banks, nor credit card companies offering me something that have already put in the mail. If I haven't responded, that means I am not interested.
