

Morse code is a reliable form of communication and should be kept as a requirement especially for emergency communications.