

Regarding the NPRM&O to eliminate Morse requirements from Amateur Radio Licensing, I object on the grounds it will only further dilute what has become a relatively easy opportunity to obtain an Amateur Radio License. Morse, CW, is a viable medium with which to communicate when other methods fail. A serious candidate, may presently obtain virtually any license level they choose with only a casual application of study.