

To be competitive and to provide broadband services to the greatest number of citizens, a WISP like Fairnet needs EVERY single bit of unlicensed spectrum it can muster. Use of TV bands would help us offer services to a larger audience and will help put the U.S. back on top with respect to other countries in deployment of broadband.