

To Whom It may Concern:

I have been trying to learn morse code for an extended period so that I might proceed with testing for my General and Extra Class Amateur Radio Licenses. Like many people I just do not seem to have the "knack" for learning the morse code... this is not from a lack of trying or spending the necessary time, I just cannot seem to sort out the sounds in my mind. I firmly believe that there are are many others like myself that could contribute to the hobby, but are unable to because of being unable to pass a morse code test.

I do not believe that the morse code should remain a requirement for any of the amateur radio licenses.

Thank you for your consideration!
