

I am of the firm belief that providing low-powered community-based AM radio is an incredibly positive step; I can't imagine why it has been delayed for so long. Communities need a voice that corporate radio channels simply cannot provide. I look forward to seeing low-powered AM available across the country, as a voice for communities, community technology initiatives, and independent community media groups.