

RM-11306

I support the ARRL's position of segmenting Amateur Radio frequency allocations by signal bandwidth with the additional requirement that technical specifications be developed (or adopted from other such commercial specifications) and included in any adopted order that would allow the operator and others a way of determining if a signal is within the requirements of the bandwidth specification.