

Although the future of radio may be to regulate by bandwidth, I feel that this is not the time. The voluntary plan that we use today seems to be working fine and I see no compelling reason to change it. It also makes more work for manufacturers of radio equipment, and it could obsolete older rigs that are still in use and still viable.