Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I want every one to know that i live in rural america and we pay the same amount of taxes as anyone in the city. only we get crappy fucking dial-up connection and no possible way to get high speed because the phone company doesn't make enough money in the rural areas. i also pay a fee for poor people to be able to have a phone. when i run out of money they disconnect my phone. one dollar a month doesn't sound so bad if you live out here and can't get decent wireless or high speed. maybe it's about time we tax the city slickers and let the country folk catch up with the times. i vote yes to an increase in the universal fund. i want to connect to the rest of the world.
