Re: Junk Fax Prevention Act of 2005
CG Docket No. 05-338

This is to inform you of our interest in your new rules that implement recent changes to the TCPA (Telephone Consumer Protection Act).

We use faxes in conduct of our daily business, and have for many years. It has been alarming and annoying to see the deluge of junk faxes engulf us during the last several years. We have changed our fax settings so that only selected faxes are printed out, (saving paper and expensive toner for the printer). This does not solve the problem of all the junk faxes, however, since someone still has to "open" each fax that has been saved to the computer, and then delete it if it is not relevant.

On the face of it this does not seem like such a big job, however, much worker-time and computer space must be devoted to this each week. We are routinely solicited by vacation offers, health care offers, and investor offers, none of which have been the result of a former business relationship.

We applaud your efforts to curb this tide of garbage routinely intruding itself into our business setting.

We believe that Congress should have gone further to simply prohibit all junk faxes, so we encourage you to use the utmost of your regulatory power in writing these new rules.

Thank you,

Helen I. Claggett
