

Corporate cable and telecom companies have proven that they will not be responsive to local communities. Their main concerns are those of the advertisers and government propaganda machines that contract with corporate advertisers. When there is money to be made the local communities are the losers. It is important for the people to maintain and increase their control of the public airways in order to continue to serve the needs of the people. Corporations only serve the needs of big business and their paid shills, the politicians.