SUPPLEMENT TO PETITION FOR TEMPORARY WAIVER OR TEMPORARY STAY

WUE, Inc. ("WUE"), by its attorney and in response to an oral request for information from the Commission's staff, hereby supplements its "Petition for Temporary Waiver or Temporary Stay" ("Petition"), filed September 16, 2005, as follows:

1. As noted in the Petition, the digital portion of WUE's cellular system employs the Code Division Multiple Access ("CDMA") air interface (Petition, Pg. 2). In the past, WUE has typically marketed anywhere from one to three digital wireless telephone models, depending upon their availability (Petition, pg. 2). Because WUE has sometimes offered more than two digital wireless handset models for the CDMA air interface, historically it has not qualified at all times for the de minimis exception codified in Section 20.19(e)(1) of the Commission's Rules.

2. At present, WUE markets only two CDMA digital wireless handsets, the LG Model VX3300 and the Audiovox Model 8910, neither of which meets a U3 (or M3T) rating for radio frequency interference under ANSI Standard C63.19. On a going forward basis, WUE plans to offer only two digital wireless handset models. As a result, it will remain at all times within the Rule Section 20.19(e)(1) de minimis exception on a going forward basis.

3. By way of additional information, WUE has had no requests for Hearing Aid Compatible (“HAC”) digital wireless telephones. Should any such requests be received, WUE will, depending on the customer’s wishes, either obtain a sampling of HAC telephones for the customer to try or, in the alternative, refer the customer to the nearest Verizon Wireless store to obtain a HAC telephone for use on WUE’s system.

WHEREFORE, WUE renews its request that the Petition be granted.

Respectfully submitted,

WUE, Inc.
