

I strongly disapprove of Debt Collectors being able to call cell phones. There's too much margin for error (not to mention consumers already HATE being called by authorized telemarketers or even non-profit organizations!). Cell phone users are CONSTANTLY changing numbers, therefore, CONSTANTLY changing ownership. Debt collectors will then be CONTSANTLY harassing the WRONG PERSON. And how is the FCC to regulate the Debt Collectors? What will the FCC do w/ all the 100's of 1,000's of complaints? If the Debt collectors aren't satisfied w/ just harassing people's landlines, tell them to go back to the old-fashioned way: mail a letter!
