

I am writing regarding RFDTV. I am a rural farm owner, and the president of a small nonprofit horse rescue. We utilize RFDTV every day for educational and training purposes, to help new horse owners and those interested in horses to learn more, to better be able to care for their animals, etc. One of our key goals is to take uneducated horse owners and teach them how best to care for their horses, so that the animals do not get neglected and do not need to be removed to a facility like ours. RFDTV is a KEY way to do this. The training and educational programs on RFDTV are enormously helpful, and useful information. Even those of us who are officers of the nonprofit utilize these great shows to learn new ideas, new ways of presenting things, new ways to train and to rehabilitate and to care for the animals at our facility. It would be a horrible blow to lose this GREAT network and all it has to offer us.

Sincerely,
