Re: Combined Application for Consent to the Transfer of Control of Telecomunicaciones de Puerto Rico, Inc., Holder of Domestic and International Section 214 Authorizations, from Verizon Communications
Inc. to América Móvil, S.A. de C.V.

File No. ITC-T/C-20060510-00269

Dear Ms. Dortch:

Pursuant to the request of the staff of the International Bureau, América Móvil, S.A. de C.V. ("América Móvil"), by its undersigned counsel, hereby supplements the information provided in the above-referenced application by stating the following:

In response to Question 17 on the International Section 214 Authorization Application for Transfer of Control, América Móvil certified that it agreed to comply with the "dominant carrier safeguards in Section 63.10 (c) & (e) of the Commission's rules in the provision of international service" between the United States and Mexico, Brazil, Guatemala, Nicaragua, El Salvador. In the narrative accompanying that question, América Móvil noted that several of its affiliates are presumed by the Commission to possess market power in those markets. América Móvil wrote: "[w]ith respect to the U.S.-Mexico, U.S.-Guatemala, U.S.-Nicaragua, and U.S.-El Salvador routes . . . América Móvil will comply with the Commission's rules applicable to carriers affiliated with foreign carriers that the Commission considers dominant under its rules" América Móvil inadvertently did not include the U.S.-Brazil route in this sentence, though it did acknowledge earlier in the narrative that its affiliate Embratel is presumed to possess market power in Brazil, and it did list the Brazil route on the Application as one of the routes for which it agrees to comply with "dominant carrier safeguards." This omission was inadvertent. With regard to the U.S.-Brazil route, América Móvil will comply with the Commission's rules applicable to carriers affiliated with foreign carriers that the Commission considers dominant under its rules, without prejudice to América Móvil's right to seek reclassification of Embratel in the future.

Please do not hesitate to contact the undersigned should you have any questions regarding this submission.

Respectfully submitted,
