I. INTRODUCTION

1. With this Further Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (“Further Notice”), we seek comment on how to address the issues raised by the opinion of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in *Prometheus v. FCC*¹ and on whether the media ownership rules are “necessary in the public interest as the result of competition.”² On June 2, 2003, the Commission adopted a Report and Order in its third biennial review of its broadcast ownership rules (the “2002 Biennial Review Order”). The 2002 Biennial Review Order addressed all six of the Commission’s broadcast ownership rules: the national television multiple ownership rule,³ the local television multiple ownership rule,⁴ the radio/television cross-ownership rule,⁵ the dual network rule,⁶ the local radio ownership rule,⁷ and the newspaper/broadcast Sept. 3, 2004) (“Prometheus Rehearing Order”), cert. denied, 73 U.S.L.W. 3466 (U.S. June 13, 2005) (Nos. 04-1020, 04-1033, 04-1036, 04-1045, 04-1168, and 04-1177).

² See Telecommunications Act of 1996, Pub. L. No. 104-104, 110 Stat. 56, § 202(h) (1996) (“1996 Act”); Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2004, Pub. L. No. 108-199, § 629, 118 Stat. 3 (2004) (“Appropriations Act”) (amending Sections 202(c) and 202(h) of the 1996 Act).

cross-ownership rule.⁸ The 2002 biennial ownership review was conducted pursuant to Section 202(h) of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, which requires the Commission to periodically review its media ownership rules to determine “whether any of such rules are necessary in the public interest as the result of competition” and to “repeal or modify any regulation it determines to be no longer in the public interest.”⁹ Section 202(h) requires that the next quadrennial review of the media ownership rules commence this year. Accordingly, we initiate a comprehensive review of the media ownership rules in this Further Notice. In the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission concluded that neither the newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership rule nor the radio/television cross-ownership rule remained necessary in the public interest. Accordingly, it replaced those rules with new cross-ownership regulations called the Cross Media Limits (“CML”). The Commission also revised its market definition and the way it counts stations for purposes of the local radio ownership rule, revised the local television multiple ownership rule, modified the national television ownership cap, and retained the dual network rule.

2. Several parties sought appellate review of various aspects of the 2002 Biennial Review Order; others filed petitions for reconsideration. The court challenges were consolidated into a single proceeding, and on June 23, 2004, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit issued its decision on review of the 2002 Biennial Review Order, affirming some Commission decisions and remanding others for further Commission justification or modification.¹⁰ On June 13, 2005, the U.S. Supreme Court denied petitions for certiorari which had sought review of Prometheus.

If permitted under the local radio ownership rules, where an entity may own two commercial TV stations and six commercial radio stations, it may own one commercial TV station and seven commercial radio stations. For this rule, a “voice” includes independently owned and operating same-market, commercial and noncommercial broadcast TV stations, radio stations, independently owned daily newspapers, and cable systems (all cable systems within the DMA are counted as a single voice).

¹⁰ Prometheus, 373 F.3d 372. The court had earlier stayed the effectiveness of the Commission’s decision pending review. See Prometheus Radio Project, et al. v. FCC, No. 03-3388 (3rd Cir. Sept. 3, 2003) (per curiam). In Prometheus, the court continued the stay pending its review of the Commission’s action on remand. On September 3, 2004, in response to the Commission’s petition for rehearing, the court allowed certain revisions to its local radio ownership rules – “specifically, using Arbitron Metro markets to define local markets, including noncommercial stations in determining the size of a market, attributing stations whose advertising is brokered under a Joint Sales Agreement to a brokering station’s permissible ownership totals, and imposing a transfer restriction (collectively, the “Approved Changes”)” – to go into effect, but continued its stay of the other revisions. Prometheus Radio Project, et al. v. FCC, No. 03-3388 (3d Cir. Sept. 3, 2004) (“Prometheus Rehearing Order”). (continued....)

3. In this Further Notice, we discuss each rule that was remanded individually¹¹ and invite comment on how we should address the issues remanded by the court in the Prometheus decision. We encourage commenters to buttress their arguments with current empirical evidence and sound economic theory.

II. DISCUSSION

4. In the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission determined that its long-standing goals of competition, diversity, and localism would continue to guide its actions in regulating media ownership.¹² These policy objectives also will guide our actions on remand. In addition to the other requests for comment discussed below, we ask that commenters address whether our goals would be better addressed by employing an alternative regulatory scheme or set of rules.

5. The Prometheus court noted that the Commission deferred consideration of certain proposals for advancing ownership by minorities. The court stated that “the Commission’s rulemaking process in response to our remand order should address these proposals at the same time.”¹³ We therefore seek comment on the proposals to foster minority ownership advanced by MMTC in its filings in the 2002 biennial review proceeding, including those that were listed in the 2002 Biennial Review Order and referenced by the court.¹⁴ Are any of these proposals effective and practical ways to increase minority ownership? If so, how could they best be implemented? Do we have the statutory authority to adopt them? Are there any constitutional impediments to adoption? Are there any other alternatives that we should consider that would be more effective and/or would avoid any statutory or constitutional impediments?¹⁵

6. More generally, we urge commenters to explain the effects, if any, that their ownership rule proposals will have on ownership of broadcast outlets by minorities, women and small businesses. We also urge commenters to discuss the potential effects, if any, of the broadcast ownership rules currently in effect, and any changes proposed in this proceeding on: advertising markets, the ability of independent stations to compete, the availability of family-friendly and children’s programming, the amount of

Accordingly, except for the Approved Changes, the ownership rules that were in effect prior to the 2002 Biennial Review Order remain in effect.

¹¹ The national television ownership limit and the dual network rule were not remanded to the Commission. Petitioners did not appeal the Commission’s decision regarding the dual network rule. The court held that challenges to the Commission’s decision to raise the national TV ownership limit to 45 percent were moot because Congress subsequently directed the Commission by statute to set the cap at 39 percent and stated that the quadrennial review requirement does not apply to this limitation. Prometheus, 373 F.3d at 396. Because of this statutory directive, we do not address the national television ownership limit in this Further Notice.

indecent and/or violent content broadcast over-the-air, and the availability of independent programming.

7. The Commission has a long-standing policy to foster broadcast “localism,” which it has defined as the airing of “programming that is responsive to the needs and interests of their communities of license.”¹⁶ In its 2002 Biennial Review, the Commission invited comment on the extent to which its broadcast ownership rules were necessary to foster localism.¹⁷ Subsequently, the Commission established its Localism Task Force (“Task Force”) to study the issue of localism and advise the Commission on whether any new rules or policies were required to promote it.¹⁸ The Task Force conducted a series of public hearings around the country, including in Monterey, CA, Rapid City, SD, Charlotte, NC, and San Antonio, TX, in which numerous members of the public and others representing interested parties expressed their views. In addition, the Commission issued a Notice of Inquiry (“NOI”) seeking comment from the public on how broadcasters are serving the interests and needs of their communities; whether the Commission needs to adopt new policies, practices, or rules designed to promote localism in broadcast television and radio; and what those policies, practices, or rules should be.¹⁹ The NOI also asked, in the alternative, whether the Commission should continue to rely on market forces and the existing issue-responsive programming rules to encourage broadcasters to meet their obligations.²⁰

8. The record compiled in the localism docket, MB Docket No. 04-233, is extensive. The four hearings included 52 formal presentations and remarks from community and broadcaster representatives, as well as elected and appointed officials from state and federal government. The proceedings also included testimony from 52 witnesses and from 278 additional participants during the “open microphone” sessions. In response to the NOI, the Commission as of June 2006 has received more than 82,000 written comments from broadcasters, broadcast industry organizations, public interest groups, and members of the public. Many broadcast entities submitted information with their comments outlining the process that each follows to determine the needs and interests of people within their respective communities of license. Licensee commenters also provided detailed data concerning the amount, nature, and variety of the programming that each airs to meet those needs and problems. A number of public interest organizations submitted with their comments studies of various aspects of the nature and quality of localism broadcast programming.

9. The Media Bureau will compile a summary of the comments in the localism proceeding and submit it into this docket. The Commission will consider the evidence received in MB Docket No. 04-233 as it moves forward with this rulemaking.

10. Finally, we note that the media marketplace continues to evolve. We seek comment on the impact of new technologies and providers such as digital video recorders, video-on-demand, and the availability of television programming and music on the Internet on media consumption and ownership issues.

A. Local TV Ownership Rule

1. Revisions Adopted in the 2002 Biennial Review Order

11. The Commission's local TV ownership rule, as currently in effect, provides that an entity may own two television stations in the same designated market area ("DMA") if (1) the Grade B contours of the stations do not overlap; or (2) at least one of the stations in the combination is not ranked among the top four stations in terms of audience share, and at least eight independently owned and operating commercial or non-commercial full-power broadcast television stations would remain in the DMA after the combination. To determine the number of voices remaining after the merger, the Commission counts those broadcast television stations whose Grade B signal contours overlap with the Grade B signal contour of at least one of the stations that would be commonly owned.²¹

12. In Sinclair Broadcast Group, Inc. v. FCC, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit found that the Commission had not justified its exclusion of non-broadcast media from its count of independent owners for the eight-voice threshold under the local TV ownership rule.²² After analyzing the rule in the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission determined that non-broadcast media compete with broadcast television stations²³ and contribute to viewpoint diversity in local markets and that the local TV ownership rule could not be justified because it did not account for these contributions.²⁴ Given the "abundance of viewpoint diversity" in most local markets, the Commission decided that the existing rule was not necessary to promote viewpoint diversity.²⁵ Moreover, the Commission found that the restrictions did not foster, and might even hamper, its goals of localism and program diversity.²⁶ The Commission cited evidence that owners of more than one station in a market are better able to preserve, or even raise, their level of local news and public affairs programming due to the increased efficiencies that multiple ownership affords.²⁷ The Commission concluded, however, that restrictions on local television ownership were necessary to promote competition.²⁸

13. The Commission revised the local TV ownership rule to permit an entity to own up to two television stations in markets with 17 or fewer television stations, and up to three television stations in markets with 18 or more television stations.²⁹ These numerical limits on television station ownership were intended to ensure that there would be at least six equal-sized owners of television broadcast outlets in most markets.³⁰ The Commission retained the prohibition on combinations involving more than one station ranked among the top four in the market, thus prohibiting combinations in markets with four or fewer television stations.³¹ For purposes of setting its numerical limits, the Commission defined firm size in terms of the number of licenses held, rather than some other measure such as market share, because of the fluidity of market share in the markets in which television broadcast stations compete.³² The Commission added that as a broadcast station requires a license, the number of licenses that a firm controls is the measure of its capacity to deliver programming.³³ The Commission also eliminated consideration of overlapping Grade B contours,³⁴ and decided to look instead only at whether a station is assigned by Nielsen to a DMA.³⁵ All full-power commercial and non-commercial television stations within the DMA would be counted for purposes of applying the rule.³⁶

14. The 2002 Biennial Review Order also modified the Commission's criteria for waiver of the local TV ownership rule.³⁷ Although the Commission stated that it would continue to allow entities to seek a waiver if at least one of the stations in the proposed combination is failed, failing, or unbuilt,³⁸ it removed the requirement that the waiver applicant demonstrate that there is no buyer outside the market willing to purchase the station at a reasonable price.³⁹

³⁰ Id. at 13693 paras. 192-93. The Commission's decision to set limits that would result in six firms was partly based upon the horizontal merger guidelines used by the Department of Justice ("DOJ") and Federal Trade Commission ("FTC") in antitrust analysis. Id. (citing Horizontal Merger Guidelines issued by the U.S. Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission, 57 Fed. Reg. 41552 (dated Apr. 2, 1992, revised, Apr. 8, 1997) ("DOJ/FTC Merger Guidelines"). Under these guidelines, markets with Herfindahl-Hirschmann Index ("HHI") levels between 1000 and 1800 are considered moderately concentrated. The HHI score of a market with six equal-sized competitors is below the DOJ/FTC Merger Guidelines 1800 threshold for highly concentrated markets. Id.

2. Remand Issues

15. On review, the Prometheus court upheld the Commission's determination that "broadcast media are not the only media outlets contributing to viewpoint diversity in local markets."⁴⁰ In light of its decision to remand the Commission's numerical limits, the court found that it need not decide "the degree to which non-broadcast media compensate for lost viewpoint diversity to justify the modified [local TV] rule."⁴¹ The court nonetheless noted that "it seems that the degree to which the Commission can rely on cable or the Internet to mitigate the threat that local station consolidations pose to viewpoint diversity is limited."⁴² In addition, in light of evidence in the record, including evidence that "commonly owned television stations are more likely to carry local news than other stations" and studies showing that "consolidation generally improved audience ratings," the court rejected petitioners' contention "that the Commission's finding of localism benefits from consolidation was unsupported."⁴³ The court also upheld the Commission's decision to retain the top four-ranked station restriction, stating that it "must uphold an agency's line-drawing decision when it is supported by evidence in the record."⁴⁴ It found "ample evidence in the record" to support the Commission's reliance on a "cushion" of audience share percentage points between the fourth and fifth-ranked stations in most markets to restrict combinations among the top four-ranked stations "as opposed to the top three or some other number."⁴⁵

16. The court, however, remanded the numerical limits of the new rule for further justification. As explained above, the limits were based on a benchmark of six equal-sized competitors. The size of an owner was tied to the number of stations owned, rather than the audience shares of those stations. The court held that the Commission had unreasonably failed to consider the audience shares of stations in setting its numerical limits, finding that "[n]o evidence supports the Commission's equal market share assumption, and no reasonable explanation underlies its decision to disregard actual market share."⁴⁶ Further, although the court recognized that the Commission did not intend the numerical limits to be a mechanical application of the DOJ/FTC Merger Guidelines, it concluded that the rule was unreasonable because it would allow levels of concentration exceeding the 1800 HHI benchmark relied upon by the Commission in setting its numerical limits, a result which it called "a glaring inconsistency between rationale and result."⁴⁷

17. The court also remanded for further consideration the Commission's elimination of the requirement to demonstrate that no out-of-market buyer is reasonably available when seeking a failed, failing, or unbuilt television station waiver. The Court found that ". . . in repealing the rule without any discussion of the effect of its decision on minority television station ownership," the Commission "entirely failed to consider an important aspect of the problem."⁴⁸ The court also noted that the Commission deferred consideration of certain proposals for advancing broadcast ownership by minority and disadvantaged businesses and for promoting diversity in broadcasting for a future Notice of Proposed Rulemaking.⁴⁹ The court stated that “the Commission’s rulemaking process in response to our remand order should address these proposals at the same time.”⁵⁰

3. Request for Comment

18. We invite comment on all of the issues remanded by the Prometheus court regarding the local TV ownership rule. Should the limits on the number of stations that can be commonly owned adopted in the 2002 Biennial Review Order be revised, or is there additional evidence or analysis upon which the Commission can rely to further justify the limits it adopted? How should we address the court’s concern that the revised numerical limits allow concentration to exceed the 1800 HHI benchmark relied upon by the Commission in setting the limits? Is there additional evidence to support the Commission’s decision to treat capacity as an important factor in measuring the competitive structure of television markets? Is there evidence to support fluidity of television station market shares? Should the limits vary depending on the size of the market? How would any changes impact the need for the top four-ranked restriction? We urge commenters to consider and discuss whether their proposals with respect to the local TV ownership rule also would be consistent with the Sinclair decision.

19. We also invite comment on the court’s remand of the elimination of the requirement that waiver applicants demonstrate that there is no reasonably available out-of-market buyer. Should we reinstate this requirement? Is it unduly burdensome? Are there less burdensome means of ensuring that unnecessary concentration of ownership does not occur? Has the requirement had an effect on minority and/or female ownership of broadcast stations?

B. Local Radio Ownership Rule

1. Revisions Adopted in the 2002 Biennial Review Order

20. In the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission retained the local radio numerical limits and the AM/FM service caps that Congress adopted in the 1996 Act.⁵¹ Under these limits, an entity may own, operate, or control (1) up to eight commercial radio stations, not more than five of which are in the same service (i.e., AM or FM), in a radio market with 45 or more radio stations; (2) up to seven commercial radio stations, not more than four of which are in the same service, in a radio market with between 30 and 44 (inclusive) radio stations; (3) up to six commercial radio stations, not more than four of which are in the same service, in a radio market with between 15 and 29 (inclusive) radio stations; and (4) up to five commercial radio stations, not more than three of which are in the same service, in a radio market with 14 or fewer radio stations, except that an entity may not own, operate, or control more than 50 percent of the stations in such a market.⁵² The Commission determined that its contour-overlap methodology for defining radio markets and counting stations in the market was flawed

as a means to protect competition in local radio markets.⁵³ The Commission therefore modified the definition of a local radio market by replacing the contour-overlap approach with an Arbitron Metro market definition, where Arbitron markets exist.⁵⁴ The Commission initiated a rulemaking proceeding, MB Docket No. 03-130, to seek comment on how to define local radio markets in geographic areas that are not defined by Arbitron.⁵⁵ In addition, the Commission decided to include non-commercial stations when determining the number of radio stations in a market for purposes of the ownership rules.⁵⁶ The Commission also decided to attribute certain radio station Joint Sales Agreements (“JSA”).⁵⁷ Recognizing that there could be some existing combinations of broadcast stations that would exceed the revised ownership limits, the Commission grandfathered existing combinations of radio stations, existing combinations of television stations, and existing combinations of radio/television stations.⁵⁸

2. Remand Issues

21. The Prometheus court concluded that the Commission’s decision “to replace contour-overlap methodology with Arbitron radio metro markets was ‘in the public interest’ within the meaning of §202(h)” and that the decision was “a rational exercise of rulemaking authority.”⁵⁹ The court also upheld the Commission’s attribution of JSAs.⁶⁰ The court further held that the Commission had justified its decisions to count noncommercial stations in defining the size of a market and to restrict the transfer of grandfathered combinations except to certain eligible entities.⁶¹ Although it affirmed the Commission’s rationale that numerical limits help guard against consolidation and foster opportunities for new entrants and therefore upheld the use of numerical limits, the court remanded the Commission’s decision to retain the existing specific local radio ownership limits. The court held that the limits were unsupported by the Commission’s rationale that they ensure five equal-sized competitors in most

This interim contour-based rule excludes from a market radio stations that have transmitter sites farther than 92 kilometers (58 miles) away from the perimeter of the overlapping area that defines the radio market. The interim rule does not count as in the market any commonly owned stations that are not counted against an owner in a market for purposes of applying the local radio ownership rule. Id. at 13717-28, 13729-30 paras. 250-54, 284-86. markets.⁶² The court held that the Commission had failed to justify five as the appropriate benchmark and did not reconcile that benchmark with the DOJ/FTC Merger Guidelines it had used to derive the local TV ownership limits. The court also stated that the Commission had failed to show that the limits ensured that five equal-sized competitors have emerged or would emerge under the numerical limits.⁶³ The court further faulted the Commission for not explaining why it could not take “actual market share” into account when deriving the numerical limits. Finally, the court held that the Commission did not support its decision to retain the AM subcaps.⁶⁴

3. Request for Comment

22. We invite comment on the issues remanded by the Prometheus court with respect to the local radio ownership limits. In order to address the court’s concerns, should the numerical limits be revised, or is there additional evidence that could be used to further justify the limits? If the Commission should revise the limits, what revisions are appropriate? Should we create additional tiers? How should the Commission address the court’s concern that the limits adopted do not account for actual market share? Should the rule still seek to ensure a specific number of competitors in a market, and, if so, what is the appropriate benchmark for that number? Finally, should we retain the AM/FM subcaps? Lastly, we seek comment on whether the local radio ownership rule currently in effect is necessary in the public interest as a result of competition.

C. Cross-Media Limits

1. Revisions Adopted in the 2002 Biennial Review Order

23. In the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission concluded that neither the newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership rule nor the radio/television cross-ownership rule was necessary in the public interest as the result of competition.⁶⁵ The Commission replaced these rules with a single set of cross-media limits, as discussed below.

24. The newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership rule prohibits common ownership of a full-service broadcast station and a daily newspaper if the broadcast station’s service contour completely

⁶² Prometheus, 373 F.3d at 432-34 (Because the Commission “has in the past extolled the value of audience share data for measuring diversity and competition in local markets,” its “reliance on the fiction of equal-sized competitors, as opposed to measuring their actual competitive power, is even more suspect in the context of the local radio rule.”).

⁶³ The court noted that the Commission’s decision to rely on a five firm theory for purposes of the local radio ownership rule conflicts with the DOJ/FTC Merger Guidelines, under which a market with five equal-sized competitors is considered “highly concentrated.” The court held this conflict “suspect” because, elsewhere in the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission had relied on the DOJ/FTC Merger Guidelines to derive its local TV ownership limits. The court directed the Commission to address this apparent discrepancy on remand. Prometheus, 373 F.3d at 433. In addition, the Commission had cited game theory articles to support its finding that a market that has five or more relatively equal-sized firms can achieve a level of market performance comparable to a fragmented, structurally competitive market. The court directed the Commission to respond to the argument that these game theory articles do not rule out market structures other than equal-sized competitors (such as one large firm and many small ones) as equally competitive markets. Id. at 432-33.

encompasses the newspaper's city of publication.⁶⁶ In the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission concluded that this rule, which does not account for either market size or the availability of other media outlets that may serve a market, was not necessary to promote competition, diversity, or localism.⁶⁷ The Commission held that, because newspapers and broadcast stations do not compete in the same economic market, elimination of the ban could not harm competition.⁶⁸ The Commission found that efficiencies resulting from common ownership of a newspaper and a television station can actually promote localism, because newspaper-owned television stations tend to produce local news and public affairs programming in greater quantity and of a higher quality than non-newspaper-owned stations.⁶⁹ Furthermore, the Commission determined that the blanket ban on cross-ownership was not needed to promote viewpoint diversity given that (1) a vast array of media outlets is available in many markets today, (2) the Commission's revised local cross-media ownership rules will protect diversity sufficiently, and (3) common ownership efficiencies can facilitate the broadcasting of higher quality programming.⁷⁰

25. Similarly, the Commission found that the existing radio/television cross-ownership rule could not be justified under Section 202(h).⁷¹ As with the newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership rule, the Commission found that the radio/television cross-ownership rule was not necessary to promote competition, localism, or diversity because radio and television compete in distinct product markets; the efficiencies of common ownership can enhance localism and diversity; the multitude of media outlets in most local markets renders the rule obsolete; the Commission's revised intra-service ownership rules (i.e., the local TV and local radio rules) afford sufficient protection with regard to competition; and the new CML were targeted more precisely at specific types of markets in which particular combinations could harm diversity.⁷²

26. To determine the availability of media outlets in markets of various sizes, the Commission developed a Diversity Index (the "DI"), which it used to analyze and measure the availability of outlets that contribute to viewpoint diversity in local media markets.⁷³ The DI, which was modeled after the HHI used in economic and antitrust analyses, measured the availability of various media outlets and assigned a weight to each type of outlet based on its relative use by consumers.⁷⁴ The Commission stated that the DI would not be used to measure viewpoint diversity in particular local markets. Rather, it was used to evaluate in the aggregate the contributions to diversity of various media outlets in order to determine which size markets are most at risk for viewpoint concentration.⁷⁵

27. Reasoning that small markets are at greater risk for diversity concentration, the Commission's CML were tiered according to the size of the market. The Commission prohibited newspaper/broadcast and radio/television cross-ownership in markets with three or fewer television stations.⁷⁶ In markets with between four and eight stations, the Commission held that an entity may own a combination that includes a newspaper and either (a) one television station and up to 50 percent of the radio stations that may be commonly owned under the applicable radio cap, or (b) up to 100 percent of the radio stations allowed under the applicable radio cap.⁷⁷ In markets with nine or more television stations, cross-media combinations would be permitted without limit, so long as they comply with the applicable local television and local radio caps.⁷⁸ In the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission held that parties may seek a waiver of these limits if they can demonstrate that an otherwise impermissible combination would enhance the quality and quantity of broadcast news available in their market.⁷⁹

2. Remand Issues

28. The Prometheus court affirmed the Commission's decision to eliminate the newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership rule,⁸⁰ holding that "reasoned analysis supports the Commission's determination that the blanket ban on newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership was no longer in the public interest."⁸¹ The court rejected attacks on the "Commission's conclusion that the newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership ban undermined localism."⁸² The court upheld the Commission's determination that the prohibition was not necessary to protect diversity, agreeing that the Commission reasonably concluded that it did not have enough confidence in the proposition that commonly owned outlets have a uniform bias to warrant sustaining the prohibition⁸³ and that "it was acceptable for the Commission to find that cable and the Internet contribute to viewpoint diversity" in local markets.⁸⁴ The court found the Commission did not violate Section 202(h) by concluding that (1) repealing the cross-ownership ban was necessary to promote competition and localism, and (2) retaining some limits was necessary to ensure diversity. The court also held that the Commission's continued regulation of cross-ownership was

⁷⁶ Id. at 13797-801 paras. 452-61. The revised rules do not, however, bar a broadcast station from starting a new newspaper in its market. Id. at 13799 para. 456. constitutionally sound.⁸⁵

29. The court concluded, however, that the specific limits selected by the Commission were not supported by reasoned analysis, and remanded the CML to the Commission for further justification or modification. The court stated that it did not object to the Commission's reliance on the HHI as a starting point for measuring diversity, but found that the Commission placed too much weight on the Internet in its DI, irrationally assigned outlets of the same media type equal market shares, and inconsistently derived the CML from its DI results.⁸⁶

30. With regard to the Commission's inclusion and weighting of the Internet in the DI, the court held that the Commission's "decision to count the Internet as a source of viewpoint diversity, while discounting cable, was not rational."⁸⁷ The court also distinguished several sources of information available via the Internet from "media outlets," stating that the media "provides (to different degrees depending on the outlet) accuracy and depth in local news in a way that an individual posting in a chat room on a particular issue of local concern does not."⁸⁸ The court also contrasted certain Internet sites with media outlets by stating that media have "an aggregator function" as well as a "distillation function (making a judgment as to what is interesting, important, entertaining, etc.)," while the websites of, for example, political candidates or local governments do not aggregate or distill information.⁸⁹

31. The court also remanded for further consideration the Commission's decision to assign all outlets within the same media type equal market shares in constructing the DI. The court held that the "assumption of equal market shares is inconsistent with the Commission's overall approach to its DI, and also makes unrealistic assumptions about media outlets' relative contributions to viewpoint diversity in local markets."⁹⁰ The court determined that the Commission's efforts to justify this approach were not persuasive.⁹¹ The court rejected the Commission's rationale that actual-use data are not relevant in predicting future behavior, noting that the Commission employed actual-use data in assigning relative weight to different types of media, even as it used equal market shares, rather than actual market shares, for outlets within a media type. The court also rejected the Commission's assertion that consumer preferences for particular media outlets are more fluid than their preferences for different types of media because the outlet's format or content can be easily changed, stating that the Commission provided no evidence to show that media outlets actually or regularly undergo a content change. Lastly, the court rejected the Commission's claim that relying on actual audience share data would require it to make a constitutionally problematic categorization of programming as news or "non-news" because the Commission obtained actual-use data by asking respondents where they got their local news.⁹² Finally, the court held the Commission did not rationally derive its CML from the DI, because the CML would allow certain broadcast combinations where the increases in the DI scores were generally higher than for

3. Request for Comment

32. We invite comment on all of the issues remanded by the Prometheus court regarding cross-ownership. Many of these issues relate to the DI. In light of the court's extensive and detailed criticism of the DI, we tentatively conclude that the DI is an inaccurate tool for measuring diversity. Moreover, we recognize that some aspects of diversity may be difficult to quantify. To the extent that we will not use the DI to justify changes to the existing cross-ownership rules, we seek comment on how we should approach cross-ownership limits. Should limits vary depending upon the characteristics of local markets? If so, what characteristics should be considered, and how should they be factored into any limits? We seek comment on the newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership rule and the radio/television cross-ownership rule. Are there aspects of television and radio broadcast operations that make cross-ownership with a newspaper different for each of these media? If so, should limits on newspaper/radio combinations be different from limits on newspaper/television combinations? Lastly, are the newspaper/broadcast cross-ownership rule and the radio/television cross-ownership rule necessary in the public interest as a result of competition?

D. Dual Network Rule

33. The Commission's dual network rule provides "A television broadcast station may affiliate with a person or entity that maintains two or more networks of television broadcast stations unless such dual or multiple networks are composed of two or more persons or entities that, on February 8, 1996, were 'networks' as defined in Section 73.3613(a)(1) of the Commission's regulations (that is, ABC, CBS, Fox, and NBC)."⁹⁴ Thus, the rule permits common ownership of multiple broadcast networks, but prohibits a merger between or among the "top four" networks. In the 2002 Biennial Review Order, the Commission determined that the dual network rule was necessary in the public interest to promote competition and localism and retained the rule.⁹⁵ The Petitioners in Prometheus did not appeal the Commission's retention of the rule. We seek comment on whether the dual network rule remains necessary in the public interest as a result of competition.

E. UHF Discount

34. In Prometheus, the Third Circuit held that challenges to the Commission's national television ownership rule were moot following Congressional action that set the national cap at 39 percent.⁹⁶ In so doing, the court also addressed the Commission's UHF discount rule, which we have used in calculating a UHF station's audience reach under the national TV cap.⁹⁷ The court stated that the UHF discount rule "is insulated from this and future periodic review requirements" and yet also noted that the “Commission is now considering its authority going forward to modify or eliminate the discount and recently took public comment on the issue.”⁹⁸ The court then concluded that that Commission may decide the scope of our authority to modify or eliminate the UHF discount outside of the Section 202(h) mandate.⁹⁹

⁹⁵ 2002 Biennial Review Order, 18 FCC Rcd at 13850 para. 599.

⁹⁶ Prometheus, 373 F.3d at 395-97. As noted above, the court held that challenges to the Commission's the national TV ownership rule were moot because Congress subsequently directed the Commission by statute to set the cap at 39 percent. See Appropriations Act, § 629.

⁹⁷ 47 C.F.R. § 73.3555(d)(2)(i).

35. We seek comment on whether the court’s holding on the UHF discount rule was ambiguous. We seek comment on whether the Commission should retain, modify, or eliminate the UHF discount. Commenters who urge us to modify or eliminate the UHF discount rule should discuss the basis for our authority to take such action.

SUPPLEMENTAL INITIAL REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ANALYSIS

46. As required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA),¹ the Commission incorporated an Initial Regulatory Flexibility Analysis (IRFA) in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) in MB Docket No. 02-277.² Additionally, the Commission has prepared this Supplemental Initial Regulatory Flexibility Analysis (Supplemental IRFA) of the possible significant economic impact on small entities of the proposals in this Further Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (Further Notice). Written public comments are requested on this Supplemental IRFA. Comments must be identified as responses to the Supplemental IRFA and must be filed by the deadlines for comments on the Further Notice. The Commission will send a copy of the Further Notice, including this Supplemental IRFA, to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration (SBA).³ In addition, the Further Notice and the Supplemental IRFA (or summaries thereof) will be published in the Federal Register.⁴

A. Need for, and Objectives of, the Proposed Rules

47. The Further Notice invites comment on how to address the issues raised by the opinion of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in Prometheus Radio Project v. FCC,⁵ and, pursuant to Section 202(h) of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, on whether the media ownership rules are “necessary in the public interest as the result of competition.”⁶ In the Prometheus Remand Order, the court affirmed some Commission decisions and remanded others for further Commission justification or modification.⁷ We issue this Supplemental IRFA due to the passage of time since the release of the NPRM in this proceeding and in order to invite comment on the effect on small entities of the proposals in this Further Notice. We particularly solicit comment from all small business entities, including minority-owned and women-owned small businesses. We especially solicit comment on whether, and if so, how, the particular interests of these small businesses may be affected by the rules.

48. The Further Notice discusses the local TV ownership rule, the local radio ownership rule, Cross-Media Limits and the Dual Network rule; details the issues raised in the Prometheus Order regarding the Commission's decision with respect to each of these rules; and invites comment on how to address those issues.

B. Legal Basis

49. This Further Notice is adopted pursuant to sections 1, 2(a), 4(i), 303, 307, 309, 310, of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. §§ 151, 152(a), 154(i), 303, 307, 309, 310, and Section 202(h) of the Telecommunications Act of 1996.

C. Description and Estimate of the Number of Small Entities To Which the Proposed Rules Will Apply

50. The RFA directs agencies to provide a description of, and, where feasible, an estimate of the number of small entities that may be affected by the proposed rules, if adopted.⁸ The RFA defines the term "small entity" as having the same meaning as the terms "small business," "small organization," and "small governmental entity" under Section 3 of the Small Business Act.⁹ In addition, the term "small business" has the same meaning as the term "small business concern" under the Small Business Act.¹⁰ A small business concern is one which: (1) is independently owned and operated; (2) is not dominant in its field of operation; and (3) satisfies any additional criteria established by the SBA.¹¹

51. Television Broadcasting. In this context, the application of the statutory definition to television stations is of concern. The Small Business Administration defines a television broadcasting station that has no more than $13 million in annual receipts as a small business. Business concerns included in this industry are those "primarily engaged in broadcasting images together with sound."¹² According to Commission staff review of the BIA Financial Network, Inc. Media Access Pro Television

⁹ Id. § 601(3) (incorporating by reference the definition of "small business concern" in 15 U.S.C. § 632). Pursuant to the RFA, the statutory definition of a small business applies, "unless an agency, after consultation with the Office of Advocacy of the SBA and after opportunity for public comment, establishes one or more definitions of the term where appropriate to the activities of the agency and publishes the definition(s) in the Federal Register."

¹² OMB, North American Industry Classification System: United States, 1997, at 508-09 (1997) (NAICS Code 51320 which was changed to 51520 in October 2002). This category description continues, "These establishments also produce or transmit visual programming to affiliated broadcast television stations, which in turn broadcast the programs to the public on a predetermined schedule. Programming may originate in their own studio, from an affiliated network, or from external sources." Separate census categories pertain to businesses primarily engaged in produced programming. See id. at 502-505, NAICS code 512110. Database as of June 6, 2005, about 852 (66 percent) of the 1,286 commercial television stations in the United States have revenues of $12 million or less. However, in assessing whether a business entity qualifies as small under the above definition, business control affiliations¹³ must be included. Our estimate, therefore, likely overstates the number of small entities that might be affected by any changes to the attribution rules, because the revenue figures on which this estimate is based do not include or aggregate revenues from affiliated companies.

52. An element of the definition of “small business” is that the entity not be dominant in its field of operation. The Commission is unable at this time and in this context to define or quantify the criteria that would establish whether a specific television station is dominant in its market of operation. Accordingly, the foregoing estimate of small businesses to which the rules may apply does not exclude any television stations from the definition of a small business on this basis and is therefore over-inclusive to that extent. An additional element of the definition of “small business” is that the entity must be independently owned and operated. It is difficult at times to assess these criteria in the context of media entities, and our estimates of small businesses to which they apply may be over-inclusive to this extent.

53. Radio Broadcasting. The Small Business Administration defines a radio broadcasting entity that has $6.5 million or less in annual receipts as a small business.¹⁴ Business concerns included in this industry are those “primarily engaged in broadcasting aural programs by radio to the public.”¹⁵ According to Commission staff review of the BIA Financial Network, Inc. Media Access Radio Analyzer Database as of June 6, 2005, about 10,425 (95 percent) of 11,000 commercial radio stations in the United States have revenues of $6 million or less. We note, however, that in assessing whether a business entity qualifies as small under the above definition, business control affiliations¹⁶ must be included. Our estimate, therefore, likely overstates the number of small entities that might be affected by any changes to the ownership rules, because the revenue figures on which this estimate is based do not include or aggregate revenues from affiliated companies.

54. In this context, the application of the statutory definition to radio stations is of concern. An element of the definition of “small business” is that the entity not be dominant in its field of operation. We are unable at this time and in this context to define or quantify the criteria that would establish whether a specific radio station is dominant in its field of operation. Accordingly, the foregoing estimate of small businesses to which the rules may apply does not exclude any radio station from the definition of a small business on this basis and is therefore over-inclusive to that extent. An additional element of the definition of “small business” is that the entity must be independently owned and operated. We note that it is difficult at times to assess these criteria in the context of media entities, and our estimates of small businesses to which they apply may be over-inclusive to this extent.

55. Daily Newspapers. The SBA has developed a small business size standard for the census

¹³ “[Business concerns] are affiliates of each other when one business concern controls or has the power to control the other or a third party or parties controls or has the power to control both.” 13 C.F.R. § 121.103(a)(1).

category of Newspaper Publishers; that size standard is 500 or fewer employees.¹⁷ Census Bureau data for 2002 show that there were 5,159 firms in this category that operated for the entire year.¹⁸ Of this total, 5,065 firms had employment of 499 or fewer employees, and an additional 42 firms had employment of 500 to 999 employees. Therefore, we estimate that the majority of Newspaper Publishers are small entities that might be affected by our action.

D. Description of Projected Reporting, Recordkeeping, and Other Compliance Requirements

56. Depending on the rules adopted as a result of this Notice of Proposed Rule Making, the Report and Order (R&O) ultimately adopted in this proceeding may contain new or modified information collections. We anticipate that none of the changes would result in an increase to the reporting and recordkeeping requirements of broadcast stations, newspapers, or applicants for licenses. As noted above, we invite small business entities to comment in response to the Further Notice.

E. Steps Taken to Minimize Significant Impact on Small Entities, and Significant Alternatives Considered

57. The RFA requires an agency to describe any significant alternatives that it has considered in reaching its proposed approach, which may include the following four alternatives (among others): (1) the establishment of differing compliance or reporting requirements or timetables that take into account the resources available to small entities; (2) the clarification, consolidation, or simplification of compliance or reporting requirements under the rule for small entities; (3) the use of performance, rather than design, standards; and (4) an exemption from coverage of the rule, or any part thereof, for small entities.¹⁹

58. We are directed under law to describe any alternatives we consider, including alternatives not explicitly listed above.²⁰ This Further Notice initiates the next quadrennial review of the media ownership rules and seeks public comment on the issues raised by the Prometheus Remand Order. Thus, it invites comment on how to address the court's decisions in the Prometheus Remand Order with respect to the local TV ownership rule, the local radio ownership rule, and the cross-media limits. In addition, the Further Notice asks for comment on whether the dual network rule remains necessary in the public interest as a result of competition.²¹ The Further Notice also seeks comment on the minority ownership proposals made by Minority Media and Telecommunications Council in comments in the 2002 biennial ownership proceeding.²² Parties' discussions of alternatives that are in their submitted comments will be fully considered. We especially encourage small entity comment.
