

For those of us who rely on information via radio, it is virtually impossible to get any local stations at night. The use of FM antennas would greatly help that and make it easier for us to access weather and important things that we find it hard to get when the sun sets.

Think about the little man for once and forget about the fights that take place with the stations!