

We have a large variety of news sources these days. If 80% of viewers watch the major networks it is because they choose to watch one of the major networks. And note that 80% of viewers does not mean 80% of people checking on the news. That just means that of those who decide to get their news on TV, 80% decide to get it from a major network. I get most of my news on the internet from a wide variety of sources.

Free markets are smarter and make better decisions than any government bureaucrat or panel.
